

Vaccine Update 443 - Feedback for the Australian Immunisation Handbook

Feedback for the Australian Immunisation Handbook

The Department of Health, Disability and Ageing is currently undertaking a review of the Australian Immunisation Handbook (AIH). They are investigating how immunisation professionals use the AIH so they can improve its digital tools and features.

You are invited to provide feedback on your experience. Feedback will be considered directly and will support the development of future AIH functions. We would be grateful if you forward this email to any interested health professionals in your networks that provide immunisation advice and/or vaccine administration.

Please note that these surveys focus on how you use the AIH platforms not the content of the AIH.

Feedback on AIH content, which follows a different pathway involving clinical review, should be provided through the link to the feedback form at the bottom of the relevant page on the AIH website.

Feedback is requested by 11.59 pm on 1 August 2025. Feedback can be provided on general use and/or use of the mobile app. Each survey takes approximately 10 minutes.

The Department of Health, Disability and Ageing welcomes questions from immunisation professionals. The AIH team can be reached directly at immunisation.handbook@health.gov.au. Please do not hesitate to reach out to this address if there is anything further you would like to discuss.

This document can be made available in alternative formats on request for a person with disability.
